

PREVIEW

Speech in the Convention

Benjamin Franklin

Summary Benjamin Franklin expresses his doubts about the Constitution, but still approves of the document. He gives several reasons to support his opinions. Franklin thinks that this Constitution is the best document that imperfect men can offer. He also thinks that it is important to show unified support for the Constitution.

Note-taking Guide

Franklin suggests that a perfect Constitution will never be created. Use this chart to list his reasons that delegates should support the Constitution, even though it is not perfect.

